OVERVIEW

Devin Majors is an associate attorney at Bean, Kinney & Korman whose practice focuses on commercial litigation, complex bankruptcy litigation, and creditors' rights. He represents banks, businesses, insurance companies, bankruptcy trustees, developers, and landlords in disputes involving business operations, financial distress, and the protection of assets.

Devin's experience includes court-ordered receiverships, financial restructurings, and administrative litigation. He has served on a receivership team responsible for the court-ordered operations of a commercial enterprise with more than $200 million in liabilities. His work included legal and operational administration, financial reporting, and coordination across multiple state and federal jurisdictions.

He also served as second-chair counsel in an administrative civil trial defending a company against regulatory enforcement and license revocation. His responsibilities included motion practice, brief writing, depositions, witness preparation, and support for direct and cross-examination. The defense preserved the company's operating license and mitigated administrative penalties.

Before joining Bean, Kinney & Korman, Devin practiced at Brock & Scott, PLLC and Thompson & Burton, PLLC.
